

Affordable, and Affordable and Available Units for Every 100 Texas Renter Households at or Below Income Threshold

Not all of the units that are affordable are available or appropriate for them to rent. Many are occupied by higher income renters, and thus are not available for rent by those most in need. Other reasons these affordable units may not be available are that some may be in poor condition, etc. Finally, the range of affordable rents varies considerably within each income category, so that a unit affordable to someone with income at 29% of the area median, for example, is not likely to be affordable for someone with income at 15% of the area median.

- Affordable units per 100 households
- Affordable and Available per 100 households

Percentage of Texas Families with Severe Housing Cost Burden

75% of extremely low income Texas renters pay more than 1/2 of income for rent

State of Texas Housing Activities FY 2011

